

The Wind in the Willows

Down in the muddy earth, Mole needed some fresh air. He was afraid if he didn't, he would lose his mind. Frantically, he rushed outside. Hurriedly, he left his little home under the ground because he had spent so much repairing his annoying molehill. He finally reached the beautiful, glorious meadow.

It was an amazing view! Mole had weirdly never seen a river before and whilst he watched the sparkling river flow, he was bewitched by it trickling and glimmering in the sunlight. Curiously, he saw a dark, deep and messy hole in the bank where a small animal might live. Suddenly, Water Rat jumped out and promptly invited Mole to visit him. As they glided across the gurgling, rushing and free-flowing water, he said "This is the best day of my entire life!"

Later, the two went to visit Toad at Toad Hall. It was the most beautiful residence in the land because Toad was very wealthy.

Key

Adverb Verbs Adjectives